Taking a broad, strategic look

■ City 'general plan' update means it's time to talk about 'acceptable' levels of traffic, whether land use plans need revision, & more

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

It's time -- again.

One of the first big tasks on the plate for the brand-new City of West Sacramento in 1987 was to work on a "general plan." That plan spelled out what the city hoped it would accomplish, and hoped it would look like, over the next 20 years, and included master plans for development and for city priorities.

"After about two years of work, we adopted the plan in June, 1990," explained Steve Rikala, senior planner for the city, in an interview last week. "The state of California requires every city and county to have a general plan and requires it to be updated periodically. Their general advice is it should be updated every five to ten years."

The city did a "minor" update about seven years ago. Now, it's gearing up to seek public input and create a major general plan update by 2009. The "housing" policy component of the plan will be finished sooner.

Rikala and Steve Patek (who is director of the engineering and planning departments in the city) outlined the process they hoped to take to create the new plan.

"One of the things we will try to incorporate is the city council's desire to include as many viewpoints as possible," said Rikala. "As part of that effort, we're making an effort to invite groups not usually as involved as we would like them to be – different ethnic and religious groups, students, and others."

These largely-new participants, he said, would join established "stakeholders" such as developers, landowners and the local chamber of commerce in helping to shape the general plan.

At the time the first general plan was adopted, West Sacramento's southern half was largely undeveloped and the city had fewer than 30,000 people. There's a lot less bare land now.

"From 1990 to 2000, if we added a thousand people, I'd be surprised," Rikala commented. But (with the help of a more recent housing explosion) "the city has just grown to over 46,000 people. One out of every three or four people who now resides in West Sacramento is a new resident from within the past seven years. It's totally different from what we had back in 1990."

Helping the city with the new general plan will be consultant Larry Mintier of Mintier & Associates. He helped steer the city through the first plan in the late 1980s.

But Rikala and Patek don't see the same kind of pivotal, major land use dilemmas looming in the new general plan as occurred in the last one, when differing factions fought over the vision by city leaders for an industrial core near the Port of Sacramento. The pro-industry groups won that round.

This time, there will be a more limited look at land use. But Rikala and Patek suggested that some areas are ripe for re-evaluation.

"A good example is the Glide Avenue area," said Patek. "It is zoned industrial. You have sort of a mix of industrial uses and mobilehome parks, and at some point, you need to decide which way you want to go."

Sacramento Avenue, too, is seeing more pressure for residential growth than originally anticipated – as evidenced by Capitol Place Apartments and a proposed mixed-use townhouse development on the southeast corner of Jefferson and Sacramento Avenue.

And the city may want to "push" some of the old industrial uses off of the riverfront area known as the "Pioneer Bluff," south of the freeway. For years, West Sacramento officials have been hoping to work with owners of the petroleum tank farms to clear that acreage for "higher" uses. They have already, in fact, zoned it for uses such as mixed-use commercial purposes.

"Do we want to accelerate some of those nonconforming uses to move on?" asked Patek. "You could adopt an 'amortization' ordinance, which looks at how long the nonconforming uses have been there, what is their useful life, and whether they've recaptured their investment. When they've done that they would have to move on."

The new general plan process will also give some thought to the city's ultimate boundaries. One major developer, University Park, is pursuing "annexation" of land below West Sacramento into the city. The current general plan considers West Sacramento's "sphere of influence" (and ultimate city boundaries) to reach north to Elkhorn and south to Babel Slough Road. But the sphere of influence, or "SOI," is ultimately determined not by the city, but by a county agency when it considers a formal application.

"We're not the ones who decide where our 'SOI' goes," explained Patek. "LAFCo (the local agency formation commission) does. That requires (an environmental impact study), which requires a specific project proposal. When there's sufficient interest for someone to pay for all that, the issue goes forward. Right now, University Park wants 'pre-zoning' from the city for their project."

Another major policy decision to go on the table is what will be an "acceptable" level of service for city motorists in the future. Traffic engineers measure service levels with a grade letter, with higher grades connoting quicker commutes and fewer traffic signal delays.

"Right now, our level of service standard for traffic is 'C' in most places, and 'D' within a quarter-mile of bridges and interchanges. There's been some interest among (downtown waterfront) property owners to look at level of service 'E,'" said Patek.

What does that mean?

"At peak hour, most places in downtown Sacramento are at 'E' or 'F'," answered Patek. "You can probably walk faster."

A traffic service level of "C" might mean an average traffic light wait of 35 seconds, explained Rikala and Patek, while "D" might reflect 55-second waits and "E" means 80 seconds. It costs money -- for items such as extra traffic lanes -- to keep cars moving

Leaping over obstacles

The Collings Teen Center in West Sacramento on April 2 hosted the "Teen Hero Awards," designed to recognize young people who have overcome obstacles and beat the odds. Eleven youths received awards.

A few of them:

■ Viddell Geter, 17, is a foster care youth who has begun serving others, both at the teen center itself and on the city youth commission.

■ Silvia Negrete was struck with encephalitis after graduating from Golden State Middle School – but got her speech, motor skills and education back on track and now excels at River City High School in the classroom and plays soccer for the school team.

■ Brandon Yip and Panghoua Yang married (in a Hmong ceremony) as teens and had a child. But with hard work, they plan to meet their family obligations while both attend college.

Silvia Negrete thanks her mother in a speech as she accepts a Teen Hero Award for her miraculous recovery from encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain. After working closely with therapists, Silvia now has a 4.0 GPA and is on the JV soccer team.

News items in brief

■ Tower Bridge approach to close; city has plans for flood workshop -- and much more

The junior-high-school-age "Club West Cheer" program will be invited to perform its award-winning cheer routine as part of tonight's city council meeting, which begins at 6:45 p.m. at city hall. The routine will be performed in the city hall galleria, and the public is invited.

On March 23, the squad took first place in the "showcheer" category and second in the "dance" category among its peers at the JAMZ National Championships in Las Vegas.

A first-ever "Earth Day" celebration at the ziggurat building in West Sacramento (on the riverfront at 707 Third Street) is planned for Wed., April 18, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The city is co-sponsoring the event with the State Department of General Services.. Interactive environmental exhibits are planned, including displays on energy-efficient technologies, "green" vehicles and solar and fuel cell technology. Attendees are encouraged to walk, bike, carpool or use other "greener" methods of transportation to the event. For information, visit www.WorkingGreen-.dgs.ca.gov.

The Tower Bridge Gateway (formerly State Route 275) will be closed from April 17-19 as the Riske Lane overcrossing is demolished. The work is part of the "Tower Bridge Gateway Modification Project," expected to transform the roadway from a former freeway to a city street.

During the demolition overpass, eastbound traffic will be diverted to Jefferson Blvd. and West Capitol Avenue. Westbound traffic will exit at West Capitol and continue to Jefferson. The gateway will reopen on April 20, but will be restricted to one lane each direction through the end of summer.

During construction, Riske and Delta lanes will be restricted to local traffic. Eastbound motorists are encouraged to use Highway 50 or the I Street Bridge as an alternative during construction.

West Sacramento will host its second workshop on issues relating to flood protection, beginning at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 17, at the city council chambers, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, second floor. The focus of this meeting will be emergency preparedness. Future flood-preparedness workshops are scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on May 15 and June 5.

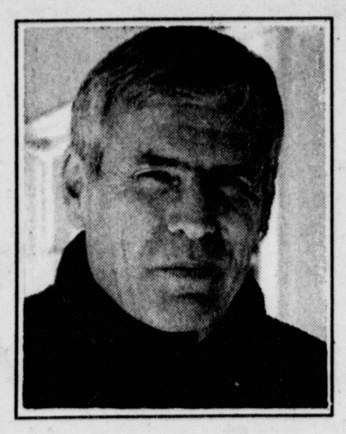
What love letters & bank books have in common

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

A few weeks ago, a News-Ledger subscriber passed along to me an article she had come across in the Wall Street Journal entitled "Digital Love Letters Are Easy to Send But Hard to Cherish." The article had been penned by a man named Jeffrey Zaslow and be was bemoaning the fact that hastily composed emails and cellphone text messages are rapidly replacing the art of love letter writing.

"While young correspondents have committed their deepest feelings to paper for centuries," wrote Zaslow, "the latest generation of lovers is coming of age along with new technologies that let them court each other on the run. Confessions once sealed in envelopes are now dashed off in emails, turning the language of love into shorthand."

Zaslow went on to point out that while previous generations of Americans have treasured handwritten love letters, often wrapping them in ribbons and storing them away for eternity, the current crop of young lovers often see romance as far less personal. They post their yearnings on MySpace, or abbreviate their feelings with such things as a simple "I L U", and often forward what would have once been considered very private correspondence to online friends throughout the country and world. And they don't even seem to mind if their emails to the opposite sex are lazily written and filled with typos.

"I guess it is just a sign of the times," said an old James Marshall High School friend of mine when I mentioned all this to him the other day.

"Did you know that Thomas Jefferson used to write at least 25 letters a day?" I asked him.

"Is that right?" he said in admiration. "Heck, I can't even get my kids to write a simple 'thank you' note to their grandparents at Christmas time."

"I'm afraid my kids are the same way," I reluctantly admitted. "I think their fingers are so used to doing nothing but typing on a computer keyboard that they are no longer capable of holding a pen or pencil in their hand long enough to write a decent letter -- much less a love letter."

"You know," said my friend, "back when I was in the Army, mail call was the most important time of the whole day. Every single letter was cherished -- especially anything even resembling a love letter. I remember this one guy used to get letters with this great-smelling perfume poured all over them. I was always asking to smell that guy's love letters!

Yeah, it really is a shame that handwritten love letters are almost a thing of the past now. I guess it's just one more thing to miss about the good old days."

"Hey, you wanna know what I really miss about the good old days?" I asked my friend.

"What?"

"I miss being able to go into a bank, stroll up to the teller, make a little deposit into my savings account, and get my bank book stamped."

"Oh, yeah," said my smiling friend, "I remember when bank tellers used to do that."

"I would take the money I had made that month from my paper route, grab my little black bank book that I hid in my sock drawer, and proudly head off to make a deposit," I continued. "A friendly teller would take my money, count it at least twice, and finally ask me for my beloved bank book, which wasn't even the size of my hand. I would happily pass it to her, she would thumb through it until she found the correct page, and then she would very carefully stamp the date on it before finally entering my deposit by hand. And for whatever reason, there was something very special -- and memorable -- about that whole process."

"You know, Daryl," said my longtime friend with a look of obvious worry on his face, "you have been doing that quite a bit lately."

"Doing what?"

"Losing your train of thought."

"I don't lose my train of thought."

"Oh yes you do. And what you just said was a perfect example of it."

"What are you talking about?"

"Well, there we were, having ourselves a nice little chat about love letters, and all of a sudden you start talking about some old bank book you used to hide in your sock drawer when you were a kid. Now tell me, just what in the world do love letters and bank books have in common?"

"What are you saying? That I'm in the early stages of Alzheimer's or something?"

"I'm just saying that love letters and bank books have absolutely nothing in common."

"Well," I finally answered, "apparently unlike you, back in my love letter writing days, it didn't take me very long to figure out that if you ever wanted to get some love letters written back to you, you had better have a bank book with lots of handwritten entries in it!"

"Nice save."

"Thanks."

SPORTS INSIDER

The Major League baseball season started last week but somebody forgot to tell the Giants and Oakland A's that spring training is over. The Giants, who are batting around .200 and the Oakland A's, who are off to 3-5 start are in last place in their divisions.

Both the A's and the G-Men lost their home openers before sellout crowds but something is missing as the regular season heads into the second week. The Giants million dollar man, Barry Zito is 0-2 with an 8.18 ERA and is throwing his pitches too high and is getting hammered while the A's seem to be sleep walking. Kind reminds you of Kings basketball!

Also, I wonder who the genius is that scheduled some of the MLB games in the cold weather cities especially in Cleveland where it snows this time of year by the lake. The Indians opponents his week is the Seattle Mariners, who play in a stadium with a retractable roof. All four games in Cleveland have been snowed out and the Tribe is looking to move their next home games against the Angles to California but will be played in Milwaukee instead.

MLB Diamond Notes

The Giants (1-6) managed one win against the Padres but the Dodgers brought out the broom in their three game sweep of the G-Men. This week the Giants will hit the road to San Diego, Pittsburgh and Colorado. The good news is Bonds only needs 21 home runs to break Hammering Hank's record.

The A's (3-5) will be hosting the White Sox during the week but the big games will be this weekend when the New York Yankees roll into Oaktown on Friday night for a weekend series.

River Cats

The Cats (2-3) won their home opener as they finish up their current home stand on Thursday with Portland before they hit the road up north to Tacoma. The Gatos top prospects Daric Barton (.333) and Kurt Suzuki (.368) are carrying the load and providing the River Cats with some pop in the line-up. The A's also send utility player, Antonio Perez, down to the Cats to rehab and get some cuts at the plate.

Kings Korner

The Kings (31-45) are working their way closer to a lottery pick than a playoff spot. The Kings are only one game from dropping behind Seattle (31-47) into 14th place with Memphis a lock to finish last in the Western Conference.

The Kings have six games remaining, three at home (Warriors, Hornets and Lakers) and three on the road (Grizzlies, Spurs, Clippers) before they shut down the 2006/07 season.

Korner Kicks

The United Soccer League's newest 1st division team, the California Victory beat Sacramento's defending C.C.S.L. champion, Real San Juan 3-2 last Friday night before a crowd of 700 plus at ARC Stadium. The Victory had to come from a 2-1 deficit in the second half to beat Real, who where playing one man short after an early ejection in the first half.

Major League Soccer (MLS) also kicked off their season last week around the U.S.A. with some interesting notes. The MLS introduced a new franchise (Toronto F.C.) and promoted the signing some international stars in David Beckham (Los Angeles), Cuauhtémoc Blanco (Chicago) and Claudio Reyna (New York).

The league also signed a new TV contract to televise every game and Colorado opened their new soccer only stadium bringing the league seven soccer specific stadiums. Also the MLS will feature SuperLiga, a tournament in July featuring four MLS teams and four Mexican clubs with the winner taking home a $1 million prize.

Between the Ropes

Rogelio Castaneda Jr. (23-11, 8 KO's) is headlining the 5-bout card scheduled for Thursday night at the Arco Arena. Castaneda will tangle with Ubaldo Hernandez (21-17-2, 10 KO's) from Mexico City.

Tickets for the Feather Falls Casino Fight Night Boxing event at ARCO Arena series are on sale now. Ticket prices are $77.25, $52.25, $37.25 and $24.25. Tickets are available by calling Ticketmaster Charge-By-Phone or by visiting the website at www.ticketmaster.com.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

Raider soccer

River City High School's CHRISTINA ESTEVES puts some left foot on the ball in Monday's game against visiting West Campus. The Raiders dropped the game 5-1, leaving them with a 2-4 record in the Capital Valley Conference and a record of 5-11 overall. They play today in Rio Linda, and return to the friendly home field on April 16 against Dixon High School.

RCHS tennis squad now 14-1

From River City High School

The River City High School tennis team came out of spring break the same way it entered, shutting out opponents. The Raiders blanked Calaveras 10-0 in San Andreas last week, improving to 14 and 1 in 2007.

Yelena Ionova and Cindy Yang lost only three games between them in a pair of girls singles victories and teammates Kehoua Saechao and Doug Tipton put up a perfect 6-0,6-0 win at #1 boys doubles to lead the visitors. In boys singles, Chris Salazar won 6-0,6-4 in the top spot and Adrian Araza cruised 6-2,6-1 at #2. A rare #3 girls singles match was also played and Svetlana Istomin breezed to a 10-3 win.

Anna Bouttavong and Sandy Phouanglasy paired up for a 6-0,6-3 win in girls doubles and Gary Yang teamed with Yian Saetern in a 6-4,6-4 mixed doubles victory. In their varsity debuts, Adam Araza and Jimmy Saetern won the #2 boys doubles contest 6-2,6-3 while Aaron Aguilar and Adrian Ledesma posted an 8-0 whitewash in the #3 boys doubles match.

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich

You're invited to a reception for artist David Peterson, which will be held at the library, 1212 Merkley, on April 13 from 5-7 p.m.

Familiar and yet not quite; a different viewpoint; a way of seeing the world around us. That is what David Peterson's paintings do. They stimulate your imagination and memory of places seen or dreamed about. In the month of April, the library is exhibiting his exciting work.

The familiar include "Tower Bridge" which is divided in half visually by a white, winter tree. A rowboat quietly rows down the serene "American River in High Water". "Winter River" is painted in somber colors with a dynamic form of the branches of a tree as a dramatic contrast.

The popular movie "Queen" drew a crowd to the "Tower Theatre". Peterson's vigorous drawing creates the excitement and anticipation of the people. In the painting "Big State Fair" he also uses bright colors and line to denote the happiness expected at the fair. Next to it hangs a scene of a traffic tie-up because a train is crossing "Washington Street". The hot pinks and orange colors suggest that it is a hot, summer day and the traffic backs up quickly and impatiently waits for clearance to continue on their way.

A somber "Vaca Town Hall" is contrasted by the more relaxed feeling in "Arden Way Baptist" with the quieter, horizontal line for a suggestion of serenity.

Peterson often uses trees as a compositional device. The trees are always vigorously drawn as in the scene of a couple enjoying a "Walk in the Parkway". The line in "Did Columbia" almost dances with movement.

A colorful "Merkley Avenue" is brightly painted in primary colors. It looks like it is across the street from the library where his work is now on exhibit.

David Peterson is a frequent winner of awards in the northern area art shows. At present he is president of the Watercolor Artists of Sacramento Horizons. The exhibit can be viewed during library hours in the meeting room of the Arthur Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue in West Sacramento. A reception for Peterson will be held at the library on April 13th between 5-7 p.m. The public is cordially invited to come and meet the artist and see the exhibit.

The City of West Sacramento will host its first workshop on revisions to the new city general plan, from 7-9:30 p.m. on Thursday at the civic center galleria, 1110 West Capitol Avenue. The "general plan" is a policy and land use "guideline" for the city over the coming years. The city's current general plan was adopted about 17 years ago, after being shaped by local officials shortly after West Sacramento achieved cityhood.

For information, visit www.cityofwestsacramento.org . To request that you be placed on an email notice list for the project, email the city at gpu2007@cityofwestsacramento.org.

The general plan will delve into other issues as well – such as trying to design "healthy" residential environments that promote walking and good air quality.

The two planners stressed that times have changed when it comes to writing a new city general plan.

"It's not an easy job," said Rikala. "People are demanding more information. The process is taking longer because it incorporates more points of view."

"Outreach has become a critical part of doing general plans," added Patek. "It used to be that the council would just appoint a 25-person advisory committee, and they would put it out."

Looking back at the first plan, have there been surprises during the past two decades?

"I think we overestimated how quickly the city would be built out," answered Rikala, alluding to the slow development pace of the 1990s. "We anticipated that by this time we'd be over 50,000 people."

"We thought a lot more would happen in the '90s and less in the 2000s," added Patek. "We thought we'd be a lot further along in the 'Triangle' (riverfront area north of the freeway) and in Raley's Landing."

The City of West Sacramento will host its first workshop on revisions to the new city general plan from 7-9:30 p.m. on Thursday at the civic center galleria, 1110 West Capitol Avenue. For more information on the planning process, see the city website at www.cityofwestsacramento.org.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• In order to stay aloft in its seemingly effortless hover, the ruby-throated hummingbird beats its wings approximately 200 times every single second.

• It was Academy Award-winning screenwriter Marshall Brickman who made the following observation: "When something good happens it's a miracle, and you should wonder what God is saving up for you later."

• Famed director Steven Spielberg got an early start in filmmaking; when he was still a kid, he used his father's Super-8 camera to make several movies. One of his youthful films was about a UFO invasion, and — acting out what were surely many young boys' fantasies about annoying siblings — he cast his sisters as victims of the extraterrestrials. Special effects evidently were important to him even then: Spielberg got some cherry tomatoes from his mother, which he smashed up to use as blood.

LAWRENCE HOME ON MARGARET STREET WIPED OUT BY FIRE

About 3:30 p. m. Wednesday the home of Joseph Lawrence was completely razed by a vicious fire which for a time threatened the neighborhood, but was confined by the volunteer firemen to the building after strenuous efforts.

Nothing is left except the smoking embers and water was being poured on them yesterday to prevent live sparks flying before the north wind.

Some insurance was carried on the building, but the amount could not be ascertained because Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence are on their ranch down the river.

Practically nothing was saved from the flames and a barn filled with hay was threatened for a time.

Complaint was heard again about the lack of force from the water mains. The stream from the fire hose was barely strong enough to reach the roof of the building.

The building proper was estimated to be worth not less than $3,000 and the contents about $2,000.

The Lawrence children claim the fire started in the basement from the electric wiring.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Palm there were present: Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Palm and family, Walter Palm and wife, Elmer Palm, H. Steen and family, Mrs. F. M. Jones, Robert Ward and wife and Bernard Ward.

GAS SUPPLY IS ASSURED FOR WASHINGTON, WEST SACRAMENTO AND VICINITY

HIGH PRESSURE SERVICE WILL EXTEND TO DAVIS AND WOODLAND; INSTALLATION TO START VERY SOON

The Independent takes a good deal of pride in the announcement that the town of Washington is to have a supply of gas for fuel and lighting purposes as soon as installation of mains can be completed, and there is to be no delay in the preliminaries according to Captain G. B. Baldwin of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company.

For more than a year the Independent has fought for this object and prompted the question mostly to help along in the general progressive movement of the town.

The benefits following a gas supply for the people of this district of Yolo County have been enumerated on too many occasions to need repetition here.

Suffice it to say now that Captain Baldwin has given assurance the work will be started immediately with the probability that an available supply will be at hand for the housewives during the next summer.

The Improvement Club of Washington took this matter up several months ago and appointed a committee of ladies to solicit signatures of residents and property owners who would subscribe for a supply of gas in case it was furnished.

The report was so encouraging a month ago that the decision of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company was then made to furnish the supply and to extend it to Davis and Woodalnd through a high-pressure system.

Captain Baldwin has assured the Independent the question has matured to such an extent that all the plans have been made and estimates given the corporation by engineers.

The supply line will extend under the Sacramento River at the gas works in Sacramento, thence through West Sacramento to the State Highway near the Sacramento Northern embankment at Fifth street.

Here the main will be tapped to furnish Washington a supply, and it will run underneath the subway along Fifth street and as far north as the levee north of rocky point.

Laterals will be placed at the various cross streets to furnish the homes.

The estimate of initial expenditure has been placed by the corporation at nearly $150,000.

Speaking to the Independent, Captain Baldwin said that the price of gas to home consumers had not yet been specified, but will not be higher than that of Woodland, Davis or other towns of similar size.

There will be no cost to consumers except that of leading from the supply pipe into the homes, which is merely nominal.

Similar service to that furnished in Sacramento will be provided.

At the time the Yolo Causeway was constructed provision was made in the plans for such an emergency. Space was left under the flooring

The anticipated growth of West Sacramento, together with the many demands made for a gas supply, prompted the P. G. & E. to get at the work sooner than anticipated.

The action of the Washington Improvement Club served in great part to prompt the company in the installation of this splendid advantage for the town.

In all likelihood pipe will be arriving within the next two weeks at the various places along the line where it will be installed to furnish the supply.

PEOPLE OF SPANISH DESCENT TO OBSERVE PATRIOTIC FEAST

On Sunday, December 11th, the feast of our Lady of Guadalupe, Patroness of the Latin American peoples will be observed at the Catholic Church, Washington, with unusual solemnity.

Commencing at 10:30 High Mass will be sung by the pastor, Rev. I. Marcucci as Celebrant, assisted by the Rev. M. Lyons as deacon, and the Rev. F. McEnaney as sub deacon, and the Rev. Francisco Helliet of San Francisco as Master of Ceremonies.

A notable feature will be a sermon in the Spanish tongue by Father Helliet. At the close of the sacred function Bishop Grace will address the congregation and impart the Papa Benediction. The sacred music will be furnished by the local choir, aided by Mrs. G. Madden, Mrs. L. Steppan, and Mr. E. T. Lowman, accomplished musicians of Sacramento.

Letters to the Editor

Waiting for apology

A little over a year ago (last winter), some members of "Save Our City" went to the City Council with concerns about our levees after seeing boils and seepage along our river. There were also many articles in the Sacramento Bee concerning the poor shape of the levees around Sacramento, including those in West Sacramento. We were criticized by the Mayor last year who said, quote, "You are creating mass hysteria." Some of our members were even called names by some on the Bridgeway Lakes web site, saying that our levees were strong and that everything we were saying were lies.

For those of you who have not gone to the flood information meetings, our 400-year flood protection that we thought we had, is really 85-year flood protection. With the new information about levee boils and seepage, since the levee failure in New Orleans, they are finding that in some cases what was thought to be safe regarding seepage and boils could actually be early signs of levee failure.

The City of West Sacramento along with the Corp of Engineers and California Water Resources are currently doing an evaluation of our levees and we will soon know where we really stand with flood protection. The City is also going to ask the citizens to vote by mail in May to put a new, increased flood assessment on our homes that will replace the current one. This assessment will provide the added revenue to do the known needed repairs and have a 2 percent yearly increased assessment to maintain the levees around us that were built during the Gold Rush era.

"Save our City" is at every City Council meeting. We have never received an apology from our Mayor for his uncalled for comments to our members. We were not at the meetings last winter to create hysteria. We just want the citizens of West Sacramento (unlike the citizens of New Orleans) to know the truth about the condition of our levees. Knowing what they know today about the condition of our levees, one city employees quote was, "Your concerns last winter have come full circle."

We are still waiting for an apology from the Mayor, but not holding our breath.

Serve all the children

As a resident of West Sacramento for more than 50 years, I must let you know my thoughts on the school board's projected expansion plans to accommodate the ever-growing need for additional space.

The current crowded conditions in our schools will be further aggravated with the K-8 concept. The thought of 300 additional students at Westmore Oaks Elementary School, for instance, is beyond comprehension. The traffic bottleneck that exists now is terrible. I cannot imagine the results if that school is expanded to serve 900 students.

It appears to me and many longtime residents that the new plan favors mostly the southern portion of our city. Why are most of the revenue and expansion considerations being guided in their direction? It seems that many years ago we became one city. Are we going to go back to division again?

Please give serious thought to what you are doing. All of the children of West Sacramento deserve your concern. Do not let them down! This is what you were elected to do.

Thank you for performing in a fair and equitable fashion for all.

City bureaucrats

This letter really has a twofold purpose. The first is to give your local readers a rest from the complaints of the underworked and overpaid school staffs and their opponents who work to keep spending at a reasonable level. The second is to enlighten readers about a part of our city government that has the mistaken idea that taxpayers who would like a little timely service are just an annoying part of the population they have to put up with. This part of our city government is the building division and the planning division.

Who would ever think that it would take eight business days to receive approval of a building permit for a carport or a patio cover? That is a fact. First, a five day process in the building division after the submission of an application, along with a detailed plot plan. Then three more days with the planning division. After two days of phone calls that were referred to voice mail that were unanswered, finally one of my emails was answered by the permit manager and eventually the application was approved. Who knows how much longer it would have taken without my interest.

The strange part of this is that in the city and county of Sacramento, a like permit is issued over the counter at the building division in a matter of minutes. Sacramento city and county have had a 100 year headstart on West Sacramento in the formation of their bureaucracies. Just goes to show you what a young city with the right talent can do in creating bureaucracies in just 20 years, as our city divisionis of building and planning have done.

Why the planning division even enters the picture on such a minor thing as a carport or patio cover built in established neighborhoods, on property with homes that people have lived in for 50 years, is hard to figure out. Off hand, I would guess the reason would be job security.

I can just tell, the city manager has his work cut out for him. What better places to start.

Prosecutor unfairly fired

One of the fired eight heads of the U.S. Justice Department offices from around the country is Margaret Mary Chiara, of the Western Michigan district office. She was elected twice for four-year terms as a county district attorney before being appointed as a Republican by President Bush like all the other heads of the roughly 125 justice department offices. In 2005, she was inducted into the Michigan Hall of Fame for Women. Before becoming a lawyer, she was a Roman Catholic Sister of Notre Dame for eight years.

Why was she fired? Alberto Gonzales, George W. Bush's personal lawyer for many years from Baylor Law School in Texas, said she was not doing a good job. Neither was Carol Lam, the fired U.S. prosecutor in San Diego who convicted Congressman Duke Cunningham for taking bribes. Nor did Gonzales think in 2005 that Special Prosecutor Patrick Fitzgerald was doing a good job, though he convicted Scooter Libby, Vice President Cheney's chief aide, for obstructing the investigation of a crime of treason.

My guess is that she was one of the eight fired because she was doing an unusually good, impartial job. The Bush administration, as usual, is not zealous in pursuing the facts, much less in making decisions based on facts.

Floods & schools

I do want to quickly mention, before my words are misconstrued or misquoted by our Mayor again, that I did verbalize concern on moving forward with a resolution regarding permit taxes that would help raise money for the much needed for the levee repairs. I have never used the word "moratorium" or anything close to that in bringing up concerns on handling the levee repair issues. If he and other council members would actually listen to what people say when they speak, they would hear the things that are being quoted from agencies or newspaper articles. Personally, I'm tired of being misquoted and lied to and about. We need to be responsible with our growth, not put a stop to it.

As far as WUSD, I guess I should thank the school board for making everything I've been saying and writing about in letters to the Editor, true. The agenda for this week's meeting proves that. They have changed the agenda format and as I said in a previous letter to you what they were trying to do (after their discussion at the "Special Meeting Workshop" with California School Board Association) regarding placing public comments at the end of the meeting. The district's by-laws say they must vote on proceeding with the meeting if it runs past 10:00 p.m. My question is, if the meeting goes beyond 10:00 pm, are they going to continue the meeting or are they going to vote not to continue the meeting? The law says, the Board must allow time for the public to speak on any items not on the agenda. Again, I say this Board and District Administration have shown and continue to show their lack of respect and care for the people in this community. Also, by placing the public comments at the end of the meeting, it will prevent people who want to speak to the board, whether it's staff or parents, due to the length of the meetings. I refuse to believe that the 20 minutes allowed at the beginning of the meeting for public comments is what has made the meetings go so long.

Please come and get involved and informed. It's imperative for our community before it's too late. Even if you don't have children, it's your tax dollars footing the bill for a lot of irresponsible decisions. The next meeting is this Thursday, April 12th at 7:00 pm in the City Hall Chambers.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

"TMNT"

Running Time: 90 minutes
MPAA rating: PG

In 1984, two guys (Kevin Eastman and Peter Laird) sick of the comics industry's obsession with ninjas, mutants and most of all, hackneyed story lines, created a scathingly satirical comic entitled "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles."

The one-shot, black and white, self-published comic became a huge underground success. Needless to say, almost immediately the two guys were approached by a merchandising agent and before you can say "Cowabunga!" the dark, underground hit had been co-opted by the same crass, greedy corporate slimeheads Eastman and Laird sought to parody. Throughout the '80s and '90s Turtles were a merchandising juggernaut.

Now, with the release of "TMNT," its hoped that the franchise can be reborn so that bajillions of action figures, lunchboxes, toy sets, you name it, can be sold.

Too bad the movie is a steaming pile of awfulness.

The movie is directed by a fella who has never directed a feature film before. He makes video games — and it shows. The computer graphics are subpar, the story (about a portal to another dimension, the reanimation of ancient warriors, Civilization in Peril, yadda yadda) is feeble and the action scenes are truly unremarkable.

Needless to say, if you were a kid in the '80s and grew up watching the TV cartoons, you'll go to the movie, get your nostalgia fix and move on with your life. Nothing I can say will keep you from wanting to relive your childhood.

TMNT Leonardo.

For the rest of you (us): Just say No.

Fly Solo: The 50 Best Places on Earth for a Girl to Travel Alone
by Teresa Rodriguez Williamson
(Perigee, $15)
Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

Traveling on your own is exhilarating, but it can also be daunting and even dangerous, especially for women. Enter the excellent guidebook "Fly Solo: The 50 Best Places on Earth for a Girl to Travel Alone." These 50 destinations, besides being obviously cool places to visit on their own merits, have been carefully chosen on the availability of:

- Safe accommodations and venues, as well as a generally positive attitude toward women.
- Reliable public transportation, communication and medical services.
- A wide variety of things to do and see.
- Affordable costs for the single traveler.
- Great places to meet people, in case you feel like not being solo for a while.

Yes, there is plenty of info on what clothes to pack and where to find the best shopping spots, but this guidebook doesn't just cater to the jet-setting girly-girl crowd. Each destination is rated in terms of culture, activities, social scene and even weather, so that whether you're the type who wants to see every museum, ski every slope, bathe on every beach or crawl every pub (or maybe a little of each), you'll be able to plan your trip accordingly.

The usual suspects are present, like Paris and Tokyo, but you'll also find detailed entries on lesser-known havens like Croatia and Bhutan. It'll tell you where to find the quaintest cafés and hottest clubs, but also how to sign up to get whacked by branches in an authentic Russian bathhouse or visit a Thai training school for monkeys. There are even reading recommendations to get you in the right mood for your adventure.

If you've always dreamed of traveling your own way but weren't sure where the heck to start, you'll find this book an invaluable resource.

Books reviewed in this column are available online or at your local bookstore.

Q. I keep hearing about all these stars checking into rehab for one problem or another. Now the latest I've heard about is Jesse Metcalfe. Is that true? — M.T., via e-mail

A. Jesse Metcalfe, 28, who is probably best-known for his role as John the gardener on "Desperate Housewives," checked himself into an Los Angeles-area rehab facility to "deal with alcohol issues." According to the actor's rep, "He realized he had a problem and was anxious to deal with it immediately," adding that he "hopes that the media will allow him the privacy to deal properly with his treatment." Metcalfe had been frequently spotted at L.A. hotspots and was recently kicked out of the Mondrian Hotel for drunken, erratic behavior.

Q. I am a big fan of Chuck Norris; I especially loved his series "Walker, Texas Ranger." I heard that they were making a movie of it after the series finale. Is this true? I have not heard anything of this movie since. — Elizabeth C., Arcadia, Fla.

A. In October 2005, Norris returned to his famous role of Capt. Cordell Walker in the made-for-television reunion movie "Walker, Texas Ranger: Trial by Fire." Making return appearances were Sheree J. Wilson as Alex Cahill-Walker and Judson Mills as Francis Gage. New to the mix was Janine Turner ("Northern Exposure") as Kay Austin. Chuck's real-life son, Mike, played various minor characters on the show during its run, and he also played a minor character in the movie.

There was talk in 2005 about making occasional "Walker" movies-of-the-week, but that idea seems to have fizzled out due to the low ratings that "Trial by Fire" garnered. As far as I could find out, a big-screen "Walker" movie is not in the mix.

Q. I recently started watching reruns of "Dallas" on cable. Is the series available on DVD? I would love to see the original first couple of years of this show. — Judy C., via e-mail

A. Seasons 1-6 are available on DVD — you most likely can find it at your local electronics or department store. You also can find plenty, used and new, on eBay and amazon.com. Or, do what I do and rent each disc from Netflix. That way, you'll get to catch up on what you missed without spending a fortune to do so! (Right now, "Miami Vice" seasons 3 and 4 are at the top of my queue!)

Q. My co-worker told me that the actor who played Tackleberry in the "Police Academy" movies died. Is that true? — Anon., via e-mail

A. David Graf portrayed the trigger-happy Sgt. Eugene Tackleberry in all seven "Police Academy" movies. Sadly, a heart attack took his life while he was attending a family wedding in Phoenix on April 7, 2001, nine days before his 51st birthday.

HIGHWAY SAFETY

A Glaring Problem: An Easy Answer

(NAPS)—The sun's glare is one of the most overlooked dangers encountered while driving, particularly during the height of morning and evening commutes. But you can reduce that danger by taking a few simple steps:

- Make it a habit to lower visors to help block some of the reflected light.
- Avoid using high-gloss vinyl cleansers on dashboards.
- Keep the car windshield clean and the windshield washer fluid full.
- If possible, choose an alternate route to avoid one with extreme glare.
- Turn on headlights to counteract the possible poor visibility of oncoming drivers.

When the sun is high, grab those sunglasses before you go out.

- Most importantly, wear sunglasses with 100 percent ultraviolet protection. Consider sunglasses with polarized lenses to reduce glare to ensure safe driving.

The Vision Council of America reminds drivers that this is a good time of year to schedule an eye exam to ensure that your eyes stay healthy and your prescription remains current.

For more information about vision and safe driving, visit www.checkyearly.com.

Enjoy Our

Signature Chef-Prepared Roast Beef

Our chef team rubs Harris Ranch Premium Natural Angus Beef with a mixture of dried herbs and spices, finishing with fresh rosemary — it's then slow-roasted to tender perfection. Available at our full-service deli counter and featured in our sandwich bar, it's great sliced thin or carved to order for an evening meal.

This wine is a collaboration of the efforts of Ch. Ste. Michelle winery and Dr. Loosen from Germany. If you have never tried a German Riesling, this is a great opportunity at a great price.
